LOCC WOMEN'S CAUCUS

Elected. Supported. Connected.

The League of California Cities Women's Caucus is here for you.

We are building stronger communities throughout California by helping our members lead more effectively and succeed on every level.

As an official, non-partisan affiliate of the League of California Cities, the Women's Caucus is a leadership and advocacy group focused on supporting elected officials, increasing the number of women in elected office, and advocating for public policy and budget priorities that benefit the women and children of California.

Underrepresented at every level of government, women who have been elected to office are coming together all over California to talk, learn and share.

The League of California Cities Women's Caucus serves a selective group of successful women who are joining forces to increase the number of women in elected office and advocate for public policy that improves the lives of women.

It is a nonpartisan organization that understands the fundamentals of local government. As part of the League of California Cities we work together to enhance the knowledge of local leaders, exchange information, and combine resources in order to influence policy decisions that benefit our communities.

We Support

The LOCC Women's Caucus provides support for women in elected office and local government leadership positions throughout California. You'll always have peers to consult with and resources to utilize.

We Organize

The LOCC Women's Caucus organizes a broad spectrum of elected officials into one, united group. Together we advocate for public policy and budget priorities that benefit women and families at the state level. Often, we are the catalyst for change in your community. Our top policy priorities include women and the economy, child care, women and the budget, women in the media, and women veterans.

We Teach

There's a lot to learn when it comes to running local governments. The Women's Caucus can help you get up to speed on management practices and issues that affect your job. With our unique tutoring and mentoring you'll get the media training and public policy education you deserve. It's a highly valuable group for anyone trying to navigate local politics.

We Connect

Political connections are always important. The more people you know around the state, the further you can go. But the LOCC Women's Caucus also produces genuine connections that can turn into a mentor, friend, or sounding board throughout your elected career.

Programs

Currently the Women's Caucus programs revolve around a series of informal, roundtable discussions for locally elected women in your area. We provide the curriculum and you host training sessions to address important issues that you're facing. Some possible topics include:

- Media relations and crisis management
- Brand new and what to do
- Balancing work and family
- Ways to achieve your policy goals
- Preparing to end your elected career

We also offer training sessions at the annual LOCC conference. All our efforts coincide with the overall agenda of the League of California Cities.
